When's the last time you tested your ultrasonic cleaner?

Over time, even the best systems lose their edge, and that can lead to contamination and damaged equipment. If it seems like your ultrasonic is no longer delivering the deep clean your instruments need, it's time for a foil test.

Every month, suspend a few strips of aluminum foil in your tank, and run a cycle. Look for uniform pinholes and depressions on the foil – a sign of effective cavitation. If you see inconsistent erosion or undamaged areas, that means it's time to service your unit or upgrade to a new system.
